THE IMPEACHMENT FAILURE—THE PEPTING AT THE WHITE HOUSE—A DREAM AND MORAL REFLECTIONS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19 1868

The happiest hours I ever enjoyed for years passed over me last night. The failure to impeach filled me with joy inexpressible.

Thank Heven! Hallelooyah! If I was David I should re string my harp of I was Miriam I should get a fresh timbrel of I was Herodias I should dance before the king! For we hev purvailed. Our shepherd boy has met the Philistine Radicalism, and with weapons which he took from pouch he conkered him. This repredy hes reference to impeachment exclooseively.

When the vote was announced ther was the wildest enthusiasm manifested. The streets was impassibly filled with the faithful. Baltimore and Philadelfee further South hed vomited all over Washington. Mrs. Cobb no long r in tears hed returned, the pardon brokers, whisky speklaters and those who hed hed difficulties with courts on account of irregularities in the currency they manufactured, wuz all here, and joyful. Confederit captins, kernel and brigadiers forgot their respective ranks and embraced each other in the public streets, the gray coats with red seem across Antietam and Harper's Ferry made their appearance agin, the drinkin saloons filled up as of by magic, in fact, the scean reminded me very much uv the revival uv the oes on the 22d uv February 1866.

At the White House there wuz the most terrific exhilerashun. The President sat smilin serenely. Sekretary Welles (blessins on his frosty pow) wuz as lively as the Dandenberg and Patter sonjuss around. The room was crowded with persons eager to congratoolate the President on his success, and every minit congratulatory dispatches was been received from all parts of the country. Among them were some from Morris sey, Vallandigham, and others all brethreen of the same sperit, of thankfulness for the result, and all acknowledgin indebtedniss to the noble Republikins which had brot it about. These come from my old Kentucky home.

Hallelooja! I'll hev my niggers agin! Thank Heven! My son Josier is even now findin out their whereabouts! The Lord be praised. Her already subjugated three uv them. Selah! Balls is ringin and bonfires is blazin. PROGRAM.

The Corners congratulates you and the President. I recommend work to mercer on the enlargement of my distillery, which was suspended when the impeachment unpleasantness was begun. All right.

MCPELTER

Hight all right! Amid the general rejoicin can I poo berrer snuff to pay the bill you owe me? The Corners is blazin. Two niggers hev bin hung on the public square, and Pollock's store is in a statooar siege. The boys are bound to clean him out this time, sure.

BASCOME

Couriers just in from towards Garretstown. With in ten minits after the news reached on the nigger suit, 127 was in a blaze and the two Brownteachers ther who reported missin. Glory enuf for Kentucky.

PUNT

Why sed I to Randall who sat moody and alone, don't you and the President share in the general exhileration? He do it seem to be the least suggested.

Why should we? retorted he. Both the sheph ard go into epasy over the sheep he hez safe in his fold? The fact is our suggested ticket was several mile ago, while we was a boyin our om, and arrangin for this. The Black Crook is rather an old to be bubbled from the front, but to the rear he is wise contracted for the legs at so much a pair, and so waged the table, it ain't so start in."

Thinkst thou the new programme will result as the F. did?" sed I.

No, the new party can't succeed, no more than per last vember did. It ain't made up ov the rite stuff. There's more intellect than solle in it—more bowels than heart. There's Chase for instance, Trumbull and Grimes. Chase has ambition, flamen nuts, and Trumbull and Fessenden dyspepsia, making the ingregasions in the new organization half ambition and hate and half dyspepsy. Never trust a man whose stomick is out uv sorts, as no stomick in him whose bowels is wuss yet. Intellect is in, heart is nothin, but see there's stomick. Go on on which to build a Chase has no confidence, Trumbull and Fessenden no gastric juice. Sich men allus disappire and allus fail. Still, I'm glad the thing's occurred."

If it amounts to nothin, why glad?"

Becos, if Sir Johnson and me out. When Arnold went back on his country his countrymen forgot Jacobs Tabernacle, when Aaron Burr airs, they to wunst forgot Arnold. Pierce drove Burr out uv the public mind, Buchanan made em forget Pierce, Johnson makes em forget Buchanan and now Chase and Trumbull will make em forget Johnson and me. Their's what I was drivin at. Under the storm I shall leave for my quiet Wisconsin home and live in peace, for beside those later years I shall loom up into comparative respectability. Good nite. All is well."

At a late hour I retired to my virchus couch, and fellin into the deep sleep with only visits the pillers of them elders conshensnes ain't bothered much, uv which I am which en my conshence sheds convickshun uv wrath to come en a duck does spring rain, I dreamed a most curis dream.

Methuselah the Presidunshel course was ready and ready a race hourse, and the candidates bed to run that course, the winner uv the race to be giv rifled. At one end uv the track was a weighin stand and at the other the winner's post, which was the White House. The runners was to carry the candidates for Vice President and such other weights as their backers should put onto em.

The Republikans bed Grant on the ground promptly and ready for the race. He come up splendid. He wasn't so mighty immense, but he was clean limbed, decently developt all over and showed first rate in the back and loins. His trainers knitted off his shoulders a few little dead weights which some uv his infoodiahis backers hed chuckt onto him, specin he'd carry everything. When I pasted onto his shoulders and he was ready.

Our people bed some difficulty in selectin a chan to run agin him. Pendleton was trotted out but Belmont proklaimed him unfit; McClellan must but Voorhees objected. Finally Chase was selected to run the opposited race, and he was trot to the weighin stand. To the naked eye he was a splendid specimen, and he was up to the mark so gaunt that natur' or sin ha carried on his hands a silver paddle with the niggers uv Chasin natur give him for defendin a fugitive from Kentucky, our people the fust him vociferous. Tall strong and muscular looking in good flesh, deep chested, broad shouldered, strong-backed he was er perfect a specimen as I ever beheld and all felt confident the race uv hev no trouble in beat in his opponent entirely. He come up to stand gorgeous accompanied by Trumbull Fessenden Grimes, Hanson, and sich, who led him in tow.

At this pint Vallandygum Peeree Voorhees Morrissey and Wood who had charge uv our arrangement took him in hand. We must pre pare our man," sed they.

Take off his Ablishin coat" sed Voorhees. And this imparshel suffrage vest" sed Morrissey, the nigger hesn't the moral qualifications for the ballot.

And this free soil shirt" sed Wood.

And that anti fugitive slave law wig, sed Voorhees.

And them ekal justis shoulder-braces," sed Peeree.

And them humanitarian pants," shrieked Wood.

We can't abide none uv these things, 'yelled the crowd. 'Peel! peel! All uv these you got from the Ablishmists free-soilers and Republicans. We'll none uv em."

The silver pitcher he carried in his hand they trampled into the mud, and one by one the obnoxious garments was pulled off from him. Heavens! what a change! Et they was removed he shrank. When the coat was taken off he wasn't so brief and massive, when the vest was gone he was positively fat, cheated when the shoulder braces was removed he became humpbacked, and when the pants was shaked off he stood before us the most skeleton I ever beheld—a weak, shaky, wheezin skeleton. Our folks looked disappointed, but it was too late to change. A loose two sided wrapper was thrown over him Guy Longfellow climbed on his shoulders Vallandygum jumped into one pocket and Fernandy Wood into the other, the brass band tooted the crowd yelled, he made one convulsive start but in vain. The stuffin was all out uv him. He was weak. Knees gave way, his back doubled up and he curse to the ground, every bone in him rattlin as he fell, while Grant made the race serenely.

My God! sed Morrissey looking at the poor wreck what he got from the Ablishists was all ther wuz uv him after all!"

At this pint I awoke and was saddened. There is where our trouble lies. We hev to strip those fellows when they come to us uv all that gives em any strength. Chase without his Ablish men can't get a Ablishen vote, and the Democracy will vote for their own men in preference. Names ain't worth a d—n any more and men without principles aint uv the slightest account. And that's what's the matter with Democrasy.

PETROLEUM V. NASBY, P. M. (Which is Postmaster)

A Democratic Confession

The New York Tribune has a very candid editorial upon the Republican ticket and platform and portions of which are remarkable for the concessions which are made in regard to the strength of the ticket. The Tribune is a recognized and influential democratic paper, with a proclivity for independence and a strong partiality for General Hancock as Democratic candidate for the Presidency. It says:

Again the Republicans have scorned themselves. The monstrous iniquity and blunder of impeachment, made doubly atrocious by the manner in which it was conducted; and the individuals to whose care it was entrusted, had broken down. It had terminated in such a way as to bring discordance and demoralization into their own camp. Violence of abuse and rimeliness of personality had been indulged in by one section of the party towards another—by the Radicals against the ablest and purest of the conservative branch. Bitter animosities had arisen and a quarrel began of which no man could foresee the end. But even this termination was a godsend to the party—success in impeachment would have signified defeat for the next Presidency. So grievous an outrage upon the head of the nation, so shameful an injustice toward any private individual would have been enough to rally those who undertook it. A judicial proceeding, based upon a desire to obtain political partisanship, and carried on by threat, menace promises and every species of corruption was a sight which the American people had never yet beheld, and their condemnation of it would have been decided.

"Saved from the greater infamy the enormity of a few men the party gets the benefit of the honesty which it vilified, the Republicans having failed in securing an unjust verdict, will claim the credit for fairness. But when the attenuations and all feelings which sprang out of the trial have been alleviated, if not altogether removed by the action of the Convention in its nominations and platform. The impeachment Senators are denounced and read out of the party. Wade and Fessenden is not the war cry in the approaching battles. The very men who effective which has been consolidated, and everything of an opposite nature is avoided. The platform is one to which the Democrats can honestly take it, and the candidates are such as Democrats might vote for them, if it were not for the party they represent.

"Grant and Colfax make a ticket hard to beat. The wonderful military of the one, and the great political ability of the other, cannot be written down or belittled by new publications, and the attempt to do so is a folly only worthy of the late management of the Democratic party. The hero of Donelson, Corinth, and Vicksburg, full of all of Vicksburg, and finally of Richmond, is not a third rate general, and no Secretary of War can write him one. The gentleman who has crushed his way up to the Speakership of the House of Representatives, is not a bad politician, and those who buy him for one will not make a profitable bargain. Politicians are not in the habit of buying a stripper, unless they intend to use the horse which have been put forward. And if they do not receive the support of the people, it will be from other causes than removal.

The Republicans have made their case, and it remains for the Democrats to beat it if they can. How they are to effect this, is a question for Fanny Fern and the Rebel.

The Independent says

Fanny Fern has been reconstructing a rebel. It seems that Mr. Parton (her husband) has an acquaintance who served in the Confederate army a young gentleman of fine manners and accomplishments. Now Fanny had heard of sundry such American citizens refusing to walk under the American flag. So she fastened the loyal bunting over the door of Mr. Parton's writing room whereby the passengers could neither get in nor out without passing under it. Appreciating the joke, the rebel pinned a pencil slip to it to the effect that "lovely woman a will had done what five years of war could not do, but that though his body passed under it his soul never did."

Next morning Fanny placed in the entry, by the side of the hat-rack a bust of General Butler, so that the gentlemanly rebel could not fail to take off his hat to it. When the amusements left on the pedestal a promiscuous assortment of articles, intimating that those callers to see Butler's face as it appeared there might have seen his back as it appeared at Bethel."

During the afternoon Fanny set a bottle of Gettysburg Water by the statue, with the words "Good for bad blood and secession." Butler was not at Bethel according to his biographer James Parton. Therefore his back could not have been there. But, if it had been he never would have covered it with his wife's petticoats in decamping. The rebel's retort was: I have no fancy for being bottled up. I leave that to the latter."

On the following day Fanny brought a pretty nosegay of red, white and blue, to pin upon his overcoat, which he had left on the hall. But in the act of doing so, she discovered that the coat was threadbare and torn.

"I'll mend it for him," said she to herself; but happening at that moment to remember a scene which she had seen during the rebellion—a procession of Yankee prisoners on their way from Andersonville to Fortress Monroe, clad in ragged, vermin-covered, bullet-riddled coats and trousers. "No!" she exclaimed, "not a stitch shall I sew upon that rebel's coat." For she felt that in some way her needle mending a rebel's coat would be wounding those gaunt and beggard loyal heroes whose sufferings she had witnessed and worshipped. Accordingly to vent her patriotic indignation she withdrew her needle and stuck two pins passionately through the nosegay and coat, and took a fragrant revenge by thus transfixing a rebel's breast. What rejoinder was made to the last sally we do not know. Our latest dispatches from up town say: Hostilities are still going on between the parties. But we don't suppose that Fanny's rebel is thoroughly reconstructed yet. In fact, all the rebels are waiting to date their better behavior from the day of Andrew Johnson's conviction and removal.

Brown on his first journey per coach not long ago worried the driver beside whom he sat with an incessant childish questions, about everything on the road. At last he got his quietus thus:

Driver. There's been a woman lying in that house for more than a month and they haven't buried her yet.

Brown—Not buried her yet. Pray tell me why not?

Driver—Because she isn't dead.

In noticing the recent outrages committed by the Ku Klux Klan in Shelbyville Tenn. the Cincinnati Times says:

The Scenes of Monday.

We have published some disgraceful truths about the management of elections in Portland under "Democratic" rule, whereat the "organ" winces, and complains with feigned indignation that the publication of such things is calculated to bring the city into disrepute abroad. Now most people are apt to think that the honor of Portland and of Oregon does not depend for its vindication wholly upon an imported editor who owes his situation here to his expulsion from other communities where people have had opportunity to know him, and who, it is currently reported, will soon be dismissed in disgrace from the position he now holds. We state what every citizen of Portland knows to be true, when we say that under Republican rule there was not the slightest disturbance in this city on election days. Every man of both parties was protected in his rights, and there was no bullying or intimidation. Nearly all the citizens of Portland witnessed the scenes in the Second Ward last Monday, and they know that it was the intention of a rabble, scraped together from every part of the city, to elect Rosenheim, if bullying and violence would do it. This was the origin of the disturbance at the Second Ward polls, which was commenced early in the afternoon, when it began to be apparent that Rosenheim was in danger of defeat, and continued until night. All the decent characters of the city are ranged on this side of the "Democracy," and the idlers and "bummers" who have been boarded at the hasp "bush-houses" and kept full of whisky for months in anticipation of the rebel triumph, have, as in duty bound, served their masters by voting the Democratic ticket. These are the persons who have created most disturbances about the polls. Yet while we are about it we may as well say that Democratic Councilmen,—supposed dignitaries styled "City Fathers,"—and several of the recognized leaders of the Democratic party in Portland and this State, mingled in the general row. The Herald thinks the election went off quietly enough." This may be according to the rules of the San Francisco "ring" in which the editors of that paper got their education; but it is something new in Portland, and something which belongs exclusively to Democratic rule, to see a crowd of several hundred persons engaged in a promiscuous fight about the polls. Of course if the Republicans had abandoned the field and give up the fight at the polls, there would have been no fuss. Would to than a crowd exceedingly disorderly and dirty would filled the vicinity, would have been likely to make trouble themselves. But the Republicans did not choose to give it up. They maintained that their friends who had a right to vote should vote, in spite of the crowd of roughs and the Democratic police. The Herald complains that the polls were not kept open long until enough of these first class Democratic voters could be got to elect Rosenheim. It seems to be a pity that the polls were closed before Rosenheim's collaborators got through with his last wagon load of votes from the other Wards; but as it was there was almost an hour beyond the time fixed by law for the close of the election, the judges having by some excuse for their delay. It affords us no satisfaction to speak of the disgraceful scenes of Monday. Every decent man will frown on them. They grew out of an attempt on the part of a few to maintain permanent ascendency in the City and by combining all the worst elements of the population in favor of an unworthy candidate, and by using him through by intimidation and violence. If things go on as they have begun, there is every reason to fear that this and his infamous elections. The party of which he is a large part of the voting for the Democratic party in this city will not much longer follow such men as Hamilton Boyd. They are for a good citizen for Mayor this time but they are just getting the upper hand and are not sure of their power; but hereafter they will vote for no man of their own party and the kind of affairs exhibited by their own friends. Then Portland will enjoy the same results from "Democratic" rule as have been experienced by the people throughout the country.

The appropriation bills which have passed or are pending in Congress for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1869, vary from $120,707,166 58, of which $30,250,000 is for pensions—slowly growing out of the late war. This brings the ordinary expenses of the Government down nearly to the figures at which they stood before the rebellion. The interest on the debt will amount to $129,000,000. For the fiscal year the Customs duties are estimated at $165,000,000, and the receipts of Internal Revenue at $164,000,000. A surplus of $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 is therefore expected, to be applied to the payment of the debt. The expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1869, will be about $100,000,000 less than for the year ending June 30, 1865. The principal saving will be effected in the War and Navy Departments, and in the legislative, executive and foreign intercourse fund. These figures are from Washington statements of the 29th May.

The Albany (N. Y.) Argus, a Democratic journal, states, after the Presidential election in Georgia, and the Atlanta Intelligencer, another Democratic journal, copied without a sign of disapproval, an article from which the following is an extract: "It affords us much satisfaction to be able to state that political virtue and integrity among the colored people of Southwestern Georgia, as exists among a large portion of whites in Middle and Upper Georgia, and we proudly assert that they are safer custodians of the franchise. We see no reason longer to oppose negro suffrage. We are disposed to make him a voter in order to relieve the state from carpet-baggers and scalawags."

A Nevada paper says of a contemporary: "We like our neighbor's bold, outspoken manner, but cannot approve of his disloyalty, as it due to its readers, revolutionary course in persistently opposing the President's patriotic and constitutional efforts to deprive Congress of the dangerous law-making power." That is a good burlesque of Democracy.

The "organ" says the OREGONIAN did not take any part in the city canvass. We remember that the "organ" did take a part in it, and wrote a leader begging piteously for the election of Rosenheim. And a wonderful effect that leader had on the election!

The Other Side of the Story.

The Herald has the following about the row at the Second Ward polls on Monday:

Just before the closing of the polls, it was ascertained that Mr. Breck was three votes ahead, and that there were a number of Democrats on their way to the polls, whose votes would change the result. At this time Sheriff Ladd was standing beside the window at which the votes were received, when a Republican, "shoulder hitting," reaching over the heads of others, struck him a stunning blow on the back of his head. This, of course, led to a general melee, during which the polls were closed, the Democratic votes were shut out, and the election secured for Mr. Breck. That was evidently the sole object of the ruffian assault upon Mr. Ladd, and it succeeded in electing the Republican candidate. It was witnessed by hundreds of persons, among whom was the editor of the OREGONIAN.

The editor of the OREGONIAN was not present when the difficulty began. But several persons who were present state that Ladd came running up to the polls with his coat off, declaring with an abundance of blasphemous oaths that "the polls should not be closed," although it was then long past the time for closing them; and that he then "pitched in" for a general row. But we were present a few minutes later, and did see ex-Congressman and State Senator elect, Lansing Stout, violently lay hold of Mr. McLean, a man nearly twice his own age, who was standing quietly by the building, and jerk him forward with such force that he came near being thrown on his head in the street. Others at once engaged in the scuffle on both sides, which lasted for some time. Why Stout made this attack we do not know, as there was no apparent provocation for it. Councilman Hallock was also engaged in the fight. Whether Councilman Fechheimer was engaged in it we are not informed; probably he was off in a distant part of the city hunting up votes for Rosenheim. The crowd was so dense that we could not see whether the rest of the Democratic "City Fathers" were taking part in the row or not. We know only from hearsay how the grand melee first began; but we do know how that part of it began which we personally witnessed. For the sake of the city's good name we would not have published these things had not the remarks of the Herald made their publication necessary.

California Papers on the Oregon Election.

We observe what is apparently a studied effort on the part of California papers to misrepresent Mr. Logan, our late candidate for Congress. The Sacramento Union attributes the Republican defeat here to the alleged fact that "Logan did not concentrate the strength of the party." It says also that "in nearly all the counties Logan was behind his ticket;" and cites Wasco as an instance, where Smith has 160 majority and Lockwood, Republican, came within one vote of being elected State Senator. The Union's error grows out of its want of acquaintance with the facts. In nearly every county Logan is ahead of his ticket. In Wasco, a "People's county ticket" was run against the regular Democratic ticket; and Lockwood being one of the candidates on the "People's ticket," and receiving the votes of both the Democrats and Republicans of the coalition, was, of course, considerably ahead of Logan, who received only the "straight Republican" vote. We have before said, and every well informed person knows, that no man could have been nominated by the Republicans who would have received a larger vote than Mr. Logan. In the counties west of the Cascade mountains, containing four-fifths of the voting population of the State, Logan has 2,040 votes, while Gov. Woods in the same counties two years ago had 3,773. The result of the election in Oregon is due entirely to the rebel inundation, and if California journals would recognize this fact and do the Union party of Oregon justice, their comments would better please our friends here.

The Electoral Vote.

Since the last Presidential election there have been some changes in the electoral vote. We present below an accurate table made up from the books of the House of Representatives. The prospect now is that all the States will vote in the Presidential election, though there may be one or two which will not be admitted in time:

California	5	Nebraska	3

Illinois	16	New York	33

The "visible admixture bill" passed by the late Copperhead Legislature of Ohio was pronounced unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of that State on the 29th May. The old rule, established by the Democrats themselves years ago, is reaffirmed, and all persons of mixed blood, but nearer white than black, can still vote in Ohio.

"Bed rock Democrats" who have never known a sober day since attaining their majority are preaching censures against Gen. Grant for tippling! "When niggers vote I'll leave the country."

STATE ITEMS.

The Sentinel learns that work on the Ashland Woolen Mills is progressing well. The race and pen-stock are about finished, and the flooring is being laid preparatory to putting up the machinery, which is expected soon.

The Lafayette Courier nominates Nesmith as the Democratic candidate for Vice President. The bed-rock Democracy won't stand such nonsense as this. Nesmith was in favor of the late "infernal Abolition war." Ben Hayden will be compelled to snub Jasper again.

The Jacksonville Sentinel has the following: "Capt. I. D. Applegate writes from 'Brown's' on Klamath, that Capt. Sprague disappeared in a fit of insanity on the night of the 10th inst. He left the following note stuck on a tree: 'Have my family moved to Jacksonville; I am suffering insanity; can stand it no longer; dont hunt for me; I will never return. Youre, SPRAGUE.'"

The Eugene Journal says the "Adams circular undoubtedly contributed no little to the defeat of Mr. Logan." The Unionist, rightly in our judgment, responds: "We do not concur in the opinion. While it is certain that Adams is its author, he worked in the interest and under the direction of leading Democrats in this city. No Union man was deterred from voting for Mr. Logan by that dishonorable plot."

Mr. L. Zigler has a mining claim on Jackson Creek, a few hundred yards above Jacksonville, which has been worked over several years since. The past spring Mr. Zigler has found rich pay in what has heretofore been considered bed rock. The metal is heavy wash gold firmly embedded in a very hard rock. The geological formation of this gold bearing rock is very singular, it being a dark grey color, having the white strata running through it. So says the Sentinel.

Scurrilous Attacks on Grant.

The Copperhead press are working in concert to prove that Grant is no soldier, that his successes were achieved by accident, that he has no talent, and is in every respect a humbug and imposter. Among the most scurrilous of these is the New York World. There was a time, however, when that paper, in common with all others belonging to its party, thought differently. They lauded him without stint so long as they supposed that he could be won over to "Democracy." A cotemporary journal quotes from the files of the World to show what the Democratic opinion of Grant's abilities formerly was. A few months ago that journal said: "The War Department is for the present in the discreet and able hands of General Grant." And again:

"Of the steadiness and staunchness of General Grant's patriotism, or the uprightness and solidity of his character, no man in the county doubts, or affects to doubt."

"On the score of loyalty and solid public services, no man in the country can come into competition with this illustrious soldier."

"The Presidency can be nothing to him; he has a more valuable office. But if, in the hands of Providence, he could be an instrument of tranquilizing the country, that is an honor for which he could afford to sacrifice ease, congenial pursuits, and the possibilities of still greater fame as a soldier."

On the 21th of April, 1865, in an elaborate article on the genius of Grant, the World said:

"General Grant's last brilliant campaign sets the final seal upon his reputation. It stamps him as the superior of his able antagonists as well as of all the commanders who have served with or under him in the great campaigns of the last year."

Again:

"Grant stands pre-eminent among all the generals who have led our armies in the late war, in that he has exhibited the utmost strength of will of which the highest type of manhood is capable."

"If anybody is so obtuse or so wrong-headed as to see nothing great in General Grant beyond his marvelous tenacity of will, let that doubter explain, if he can, how it has happened that since Grant rose to high command, this quality has always been exerted in conspicuous energy precisely at the point on which everything in his whole sphere of operations hinged."

"How, if he be not a general of the first order of intellect, as well as of the most heroic determination, does it happen that in assigning great and brilliant parts to his subordinate commanders, he has never, when the results of his strategy were unfolded, appeared in the picture except as the central figure?"

"Apply to General Grant what test you will, measure him by the magnitude of the obstacles he has surmounted, by the value of the positions he has gained, by the fame of the antagonist over whom he has triumphed, by the achievements of his most illustrious co-workers, by the successes with which he directs his indomitable energy to the vital point which is the key of a vast field of operations, or by that supreme test of consummate ability, the absolute completeness of his results, and he vindicates his claim to stand next, after Napoleon and Wellington, among the great soldiers of this century, if not on a level with the latter."

These extracts might be multiplied to a very great extent without exhausting all which that paper has said in praise of Grant. Ought not this to be good Democratic testimony?

UNFORTUNATE MAN.—It is said that the friends of the fellow Davidson at Portland are apprehensive that he will soon become suddenly deranged. The receipt of a telegram from old Andy was too much for his nerves. The cause of the sympathy between Davidson and the President is said to have originated from the fact that the former was once employed to make out a tailor shop.—Unionist.

THE PETROLEUM TRADE.—A writer in the Pittsburgh Commercial says that on the 1st of April last, the four principal petroleum ports of Europe had on hand a less stock than on the previous year by 35,193 barrels; the stock at New York and Philadelphia was less by 100,000 barrels; the stock at Pittsburgh and the wells is less by 500,000 barrels; making a total falling off in the supply of 700,000 barrels. The production during the past year has averaged about 9,000 barrels per day, while the consumption is about 13,000 barrels. Hence it is inferred that there will be a rise in oil, oil lands and oil stocks, and that sharp corners await those that "sell short."

The Fire on the Hearth

There is a luxury rare in the carpet of Brussels
And splendid in pictures that hang on the wall
And grace in the curtain with rainbow hood tassels—
And fashion is in gaslight that flashes o'er all
But give me the glow of the bright roaring fire
That speaks kind welcome as it rises in smoke
And lends additional joy to the homely old higher
When the cold winds without it make us draw near the hearth

The old fashioned fire the cheerful wood hearth
The ring-roasted nut that burns on the hearth

As I feel so warm glow I remember my childhood,
And all the wild scenes that drew round it of late
The Winter eve sports, with the snow on the wild wood
The apples and cider from cellars well stored
I hear in the roar the wild shouts of my brothers
And the laugh of my sisters in our sweet mirth
As the rosy faces are seen here and there,
Who hails by the firelight that glows from the hearth
The old open fire the health giving fire
The kind cheering fire that glows on the hearth

It seems as if friends that we drew to the hearth
When winds of misfortune blow heavy and hill
And fees with each blast they are warmer and truer
And ready to help us and comfort us still
Friends that never grow cold till the log day is ended
And the ashes are laid in their rest in the earth
And the spirit still glowing to God has ascended,
To rekindle new fires, like the past in the hearth
Then give me the fire the fresh glowing fire
The bright open fire that burns on the hearth

Reflections on the American System of Farming

We find the following suggestions in a recent number of the Boston Watchman and Reflector, which are worthy the earnest consideration of the farmers of this State although written to apply to the Eastern States

We are greatly disturbed by our personal observations, and the statistics presented at Washington to find the smallness of the production from our land, when compared with that of old Kentucky. Can it be that we, as a people, do not know how to cultivate the earth? We, who have excelled the world in so many other departments

And again, why should we leave our eastern farm, to fall into the hands of some enterprising foreigner, while we buy a newer one to run in the same way? And then have the mortification of seeing the old farm in other hands, turn out more to the acre than our new one will. Is this not true? Are not our young farmers leaving their eastern homes for so-called better farms out West? But it is equally true that the old lands of England and France, bring larger crops to day than do the new lands. Even a short visit to Europe convinces any thinking man that the main reliance in restoring the fertility of the soil is not manure, but that we have failed to grasp the principle of rotation of crops. Every farmer knows that clover, timothy, &c., are exhausting crops, and that a succession of such crops will soon impoverish the soil. Now, the true principle of agriculture, and upon it success depends, is to alternate exhausting crops with those that restore to the soil the elements of fertility which have been taken away. Every farmer can recall instances where the fertility of a so-called worn out piece of land has been unexpectedly restored, that is always attributable to some cause, and generally to a supply of manure, in some form. Rural economy should be applied to replacing all that is sent away, as well as to keeping all that is possible on the farm. The writer has never seen a worn out field in this country, where too much good fertilizing material had been used. Of course disappointment has frequently followed the use of caustic or improper manures, but too much of the proper fertilizer is very rarely used. In order to give a correct idea of the amount of material carried away from an acre of land, the results of two experiments are given here. One acre of land yielded 3,010 pounds of wheat and straw. This contained 323 pounds of mineral matter, including 27 pounds of bone phosphate of lime which had been rendered soluble. It will be seen that these are not unusually large yields, and yet many farmers put back one-half of the materials taken out in these crops.

The New York World says that the late great improvement in the mechanics of agriculture, while it has given ease to the human muscle, does nothing towards replenishing the soil with the elements which are yearly taken from it by cropping. It says: "It is a far more cheering sight to see a line of steady reapers swinging the cradle on wheat fields that will yield thirty bushels to the acre, than to watch the motions of one of those automatons, a McCormick, or a Buckeye or an Eastern, or a Clipper, doing its swift, clean work, in slender, scattered, half-filled grain, that will not average over ten bushels to the acre. Less work, we say, and more true thrift. These cams, and rods, and journals, these conical rollers, steel cranks, and cutter bars, have no effect on the soil. They do not make the wheat grow, nor put into the wheat heads to fill out. There is ground for general alarm when we see all over the country from the Hudson to the Des Moines, from the Mississippi to the Chattahoochee to Missouri, a decline annually in the yield per acre. The average for the whole country has not been over twelve bushels. Ohio, the banner State of the West, does not yield more than four bushels to the acre. The soil of Ohio, they have produced less than half the average that England gets from hers. We have had experience the days of Job."

The Life of Grant—Its Lesson.—The lesson of Grant's life is that, wherever we are placed, we are doing our highest and best political work when we are doing work decreed at hand and to which we have been especially called, and that there is no such servant of the country as he who keeps his mind steadily fixed on what he knows to be his business. When Grant took command of a regiment at the outbreak of the war, he did nothing but command it to the best of his abilities. When he got over a division, he did nothing and thought of nothing but commanding an army. When he was made commander in chief he gave his mind to the duties of that office, and to nothing else. He kept his grasp fixed on his books, papers and reports. All of the conspicuous boys of the country and the world, or getting up "views" on reconstruction or universal suffrage. Being a failure he tried to be the best kind of a soldier simply, and not a meagre politician, with newspapers, documents, and drafts of speeches sticking out of the pockets of a uniform coat. What temptations an American soldier has to resist who pursues this course, we may infer from the example of General McClellan. When that unlucky personage found himself driven back on Harrison's Landing, after those awful days of July, 1862, with an army perishing by inches in his hands, the nation looking on in agony, and the world in a sense, with every inducement that was ever applied to a human being urging him to concentrate all his faculties on the dreadful game before him, he retired to his tent and wrote out for Mr Lincoln's edification, his "views" on the state of the country—old "views," too, with which he had probably been crammed a month previously by New York politicians. It was one of the most ludicrous incidents in military history, but there was nevertheless something very pathetic about it. It meant not that he wilfully neglected his own work to meddle in other people's, but that, being weak-brained and over matched he turned readily for relief to one of the commonest indulgences of the day. It was an pleasant and easy to show Mr. Lincoln on paper how to govern the country at large, so hard to withstand the terrible Lee and his rebels on the other side of the hill. And he made his account by it. A large portion of the public hailed it as a lucky stroke, and the Harrison's Landing letter became a "state paper."—Nation

NATIONAL UNION PLATFORM.

1st. We congratulate the country on the assured success of the Reconstruction Policy of Congress as evidenced by the adoption in a majority of States lately in rebellion, of Constitutions securing equal, civil and political rights to all (applause) and we regard it as the duty of the government to sustain those institutions and protect the people of such States from violence until restored to state of anarchy or military rule. (Applause.)

2d. The guarantees by Congress of equal suffrage to all loyal men in the South was demanded by every consideration of public safety, gratitude and justice and must be maintained while the present necessity for it in loyal States or party ostracism against the people of the States.

3d. We denounce all forms of repudiation as infamous (immense applause) and will not hesitate to support the payment of the public indebtedness in every constitutional manner that may be required by the creditor. (Applause.) And we assert that the first duty of the National Legislature is to provide as speedily as possible for the payment of the national debt, which can only be done by a judicious system of taxation, and by the observance of the most rigid economy in the appropriation of money. (Applause.)

4th. That the best policy to maintain our credit is to let Congress solely have the power to regulate the currency, and to that end we are in favor of the withdrawal of the circulation of the National Banks as rapidly as it can be safely done, consistent with the business interests of the country. (Applause.)

5th. That the Government of the United States should be administered with the strictest economy and the corruption which have been so shamefully abused and denounced by Andrew Johnson (cries of "Hold on!" and cheers.)

6th. We are fondly devoted to the untimely and tragic death of Abraham Lincoln, and regret the succession of Andrew Johnson to the Presidency, who has acted treacherously to the people who elevated him to power, because he was pledged to support the views of the Republican party, which Congress in passing the Reconstruction and other laws, has compelled the Executive to carry out, but he has acted faithlessly to the party in the exercise of executive functions. That the platform adopted by the Philadelphia Convention, which was denounced by the Democratic Convention as the Platform of Principles, is endorsed by the Union party as the basis of our present national policy, and we recommend its adoption as the only means of restoring peace, prosperity and fraternal feeling. (Applause.)

7th. That the Government of the United States should be administered with the strictest economy and the corruption which have been so shamefully abused and denounced by Andrew Johnson (cries of "Hold on!" and cheers.)

8th. We are fondly devoted to the untimely and tragic death of Abraham Lincoln, and regret the succession of Andrew Johnson to the Presidency, who has acted treacherously to the people who elevated him to power, because he was pledged to support the views of the Republican party, which Congress in passing the Reconstruction and other laws, has compelled the Executive to carry out, but he has acted faithlessly to the party in the exercise of executive functions. That the platform adopted by the Philadelphia Convention, which was denounced by the Democratic Convention as the Platform of Principles, is endorsed by the Union party as the basis of our present national policy, and we recommend its adoption as the only means of restoring peace, prosperity and fraternal feeling. (Applause.)

9th. The doctrine of Great Britain and other European powers that, because a man is once subject to allegiance, he must be treated at every hazard as such, is one always to be resisted and repudiated by the United States as a relic of feudal times not authorized by the law of nations and at war with our national law and our whole history. Naturalized citizens are entitled to the protection by all their rights of citizenship as those who were native born. No citizen of the United States naturalized must be liable to arrest or imprisonment by any foreign power for acts done or words spoken in this country, and if so arrested and imprisoned it is the duty of the Government to interfere in his behalf.

10th. Of all who were faithful in the trials of the late war, there were none more conspicuous for special honor than brave sailors and soldiers who endured hardships of camp and of fire and imperilled their lives in the service of their country. The honors and pensions so appropriately granted by law for these brave defenders of the Union are obligations never to be forgotten. (Applause.) The widows and orphans of the gallant dead are wards of the people, a sacred legacy bequeathed to the United States for protecting care. (Applause.)

11th. Foreign immigration in the past has added so much to the wealth and resources of this nation, the asylum of all nations, that it should be fostered by a liberal and just policy.

12th. This Convention declares its sympathy with all oppressed people who are struggling for their rights.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted.

The following additional resolution was offered and adopted, by Mr. Thompson:

Resolved, That the adjournment of this Convention shall not work dissolution of the same, but it shall remain an organized, subject to be further called together at any time or place that the Republican Executive Committee shall designate.

By Carl Shurtz. Resolved. We highly commend in a spirit of magnanimity and forgiveness the man who have served this rebellion and who are now frankly and honestly co-operating with us in restoring peace to the country and in the reconstruction of Southern States on the basis of impartial justice and equal rights and are resolved back into the communion of loyal men; and we are in favor of the removal of the disqualification and restrictions imposed on the late rebels in the same manner as the Constitution and laws of the United States may relieve other criminals and delinquents, as may be consistent with the safety of the loyal people.

Mr. Shurtz said the principles laid down in the platform were those of Abraham Lincoln, and we shall with pleasure continue to maintain these principles in the living.

A THRILLING INCIDENT

In this missionary life of Mrs. Ingalls, in Burmah, is told in the Baptist Messenger relating how she was sent for to visit one of the Buddhist high priests who had been nearly killed and how, while in the most holy place in their temple, where none but the priests had ever before been admitted, she was permitted mercifully to use for him the sacred vessels which none but the high priest dare touch, and to even overturn and sit on one of their gods to rest, all through the magic influence of the Pain Killer, called by them the 'God medicine,' so successfully had she used it in curing their many diseases, some of them considered heretofore fatal in this country and among which were cholera, fever complaint, dysentery, the bites of venomous reptiles &c. The speaks volumes for the Pain Killer.—London Times.

Rev J E Clough, Missionary at Ongole Southern India, writes: "We esteem your Pain Killer very highly for dysentery, cholera, &c, and cannot very well get along without it."

Rev T D Colburn, Missionary at Tavoy Burmah, writes, "I shall be happy to assist in extending a knowledge of a remedy so speedy and effectual."

THESE WHEELS, WHICH ARE NOW UNEQUALLED in the United States or the world, have been fully tested on this coast, many for a year and at this date, driving all kinds of machinery, Saw Mills, Flour Mills, Quartz Mills, Woolen Factories, &c, &c

CAUTION.

To all whom it may concern. I hereby give notice that the so-called "Shipley's Pacific Turbine Water Wheel" is an direct infringement and copy of the "James Leffel & American Double Turbine Water Wheel," and its manufacture and use is hereby prohibited. Any person or persons making, using, constructing or vending said Water Wheels make themselves liable to heavy damages and penalties. Parties interested will take notice, for I shall prosecute all infringements to the utmost extent of the law.

That all may know I mean what I say, and am not playing "bluff" I give the following extract from a legal opinion on this subject from one of the most eminent Patent Attorneys in the United States.

WASHINGTON, D C April 17, 1868

"MR A MYERS, Portland Oregon, Dear Sir: In accordance with your request, we have examined the patents of Shipley on Water Wheels, and are clearly of the opinion that they both infringe the Leffel patents. In both of Shipley's Wheels he uses the upper and lower tiers of buckets precisely as Leffel does, and in this he clearly infringes. The fact that Shipley has applied another series of buckets in addition as those used by Leffel does not relieve him from the consequences of infringement at all. He has no right to use those two tiers of buckets, whether alone or with a third or any other number of tiers added. It is as clear an infringement. Respectfully yours,

DODGE & MUNN

I hereby give notice that I will prosecute every infringement on our Patents, whether it is the maker, user buyer or seller. Every infringement whether our claims are used in whole or in part, will be prosecuted.
